

Intercultural Communication

by Melissa Silva

Content

The one-day seminar will start off with a critical examination of the concept of culture and a reflection on its meaning for our own patterns of assessment and perception.

The seminar's focus will be on interactive, practical exercises that enable participants to become aware of, and reflect on, their own social status. These practical exercises are centered on theoretical input and panel discussions.

Trainer

The trainer for this seminar is Melissa Silva, a research associate at the Chair of Philosophy of Education at the Julius-Maximilians-Universität Würzburg. Her research focuses on topics of Postcolonial Studies as well as forced migration and asylum.
